Major systematic improvement (resulting in significant benefit to the user/stake holder and/ or reduction in time and costs)

a. [Refer Serial No.7.a]

Development of an Indian Literature Database on Communication Disorders covering various types of Indian scientific publications in the field. Coverage of Indian publications on Communication Disorders are highly inadequate in international databases. We collected bibliographic details of 2600 + Indian published scientific materials in the field, scattered across different print and electronic media, and brought under a common platform. This will be highly beneficial for the researchers in the field.

b. [Refer Serial No.7.b]

Redesigned and developed an Online Public Access Catalogue (OPAC) and Institutional Repository for AIISH using open source technologies. The work was carried out as a non-funded project. The newly developed system can replace our existing system which is based on proprietary software and maintained by third party. The new platform facilitates a common search interface for identifying all the print books of the library, and faculty publications in the last five years thereby saving the time of users. It will also alert the library users on book return due date, late fee etc. and display table of content of library books.

c. [Refer Serial No. 9]

Formulation of Institutional Policy on Academic Integrity and Plagiarism in compliance with the UGC regulations. According to the UGC regulations 2018, all the Higher Education Institutions must have an Academic Integrity and Plagiarism Policy and display on the homepage of the official website of the Institute. Only a few Institutions in the country have own Academic Integrity and Plagiarism Policy. The new policy will help AIISH to maintain quality and integrity in research and education.

11. What sort of training do you propose for yourself in support of your official duties?

Advanced IT management
